I am the head of real estate at Cripps. The property world is fascinating to work in; the results are tangible, and the rewards immense when revitalising assets or even a whole area, all the while achieving our clients aims.

With over 20 years' experience, my role includes advising our clients on their development projects and investment decisions, whether its buying or selling commercial property.

I enjoy guiding clients on day-to-day asset management to make the most of their portfolios and helping repurpose and regenerate places to make a real difference to people and communities.

I advise institutional investors and private property companies as well as other investors.

Managing the real estate team also gives me oversight of all the support we provide our clients, which helps gain a better understanding of their goals.

Areas of expertise:

- Commercial real estate
