I'm a managing associate in the commercial team, reviewing, drafting and negotiating contracts and advising on intellectual property, data protection and other commercial issues.

I help clients with a broad range of commercial issues, relating to compliance, terms of business, and drafting and negotiating contracts. Clients value my practical advice on complex matters, and my robust but constructive approach to negotiations. I work with a variety of businesses, from start-ups to international groups, taking the time to understand and reflect their different commercial objectives and priorities.

I have a particular specialism in data protection and have contributed to articles in the Washington Post and the Guardian on that topic.

I am ranked in the leading legal directory, Chambers and Partners 2024.
