

Cripps private wealth team expands with appointment of new partner

Top 100 law firm Cripps has announced the appointment of a new partner, Victoria Fairley, into its London private wealth team.

Victoria, who has over 20 years' experience advising on estate, tax and succession planning, joins from RadcliffesLeBrasseur where she headed up the tax and private client team. She advises clients on estate, tax and succession planning, the preparation of wills, heritage property and the administration of trusts and estates. She is also highly experienced in providing formation and management advice to charities.

Commenting on her appointment, Victoria said: "I'm thrilled to be joining Cripps. The firm has an excellent reputation, particularly in private wealth, and a really impressive client base. I'm looking forward to working with the team in the new London office."

Jeremy Curtis, head of the London office, added: "We are really excited to have Victoria joining our London team. She is much loved and valued by long standing clients and has a strong reputation amongst her fellow professionals. It's what all private client lawyers aspire to – and sits squarely within our own core values. She is a great addition to our team."

Victoria is recognised by Legal 500 as a 'leading individual' in her field, with a client stating she is 'measured, intelligent and a very safe pair of hands'.
