

The National Planning Policy Framework webinar: builders or blockers?

December 2023 saw the publication of what will be the fourth version of The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF) in as many years. To consider the impact that the new guidance is likely to have, please join our webinar which we are running jointly with Andrew Black Consulting.

About the webinar:

James Clewlow will host the session and will be asking planning consultant Andrew Black and Cripps' planning expert, Beth Gascoyne, what the new guidance will mean in terms of:

- the impact on overall housing supply
- housing land supply arguments and operation of the presumption in favour of sustainable development
- the likely impact on the preparation and delivery of district/local authorities' local plans
- significant changes from the original consultation

The intention is for the webinar to be an informal exploration and thought provoking discussion.

Ahead of the webinar we invite you to submit questions for the panel to consider.
